Change Order

CO #

Write it down, price it, get it signed, then do the work.

Project / job _____ Date _____

Client _____ Requested by _____

Address _____

Contractor company _____ Phone _____

Email _____

DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

REASON

☐ Client request ☐ Hidden condition ☐ Design change ☐ Code requirement ☐ Other: _____

COST OF THIS CHANGE

Item	Qty	Unit cost	Total

Subtotal _____ Original contract _____

Markup % _____ Previous change orders _____

Price to client _____ New contract total _____

Schedule impact (days) _____ Payment terms _____

Client approval

Signature _____

Printed name _____

Date _____

Contractor approval

Signature _____

Printed name _____

Date _____

By signing, both parties agree to the change, price and schedule above. Check your state's rules for written change orders.

How to use this form

Five steps that keep extra work from turning into unpaid work.

1

Write it before work starts

As soon as the change comes up, fill in this form. Describe the change in plain words so anyone reading it later knows exactly what was added, removed or swapped.

2

Get the signature before you do the work

Walk the client through the price and the days it adds. Once both of you sign, start the work. A signed form now saves an argument at the final invoice.

3

Price it with your markup

List every item with quantity and unit cost, add your markup, and show the price to the client. Then carry it into the contract totals so everyone sees the new contract total.

4

Attach photos

Snap photos of the hidden condition, the old work or the spot that changed. Staple prints to this form or save them in the job folder with the CO number in the file name.

5

Log it and bill it with the next invoice

Give each change order its own number and record it in your job log. Add the approved amount to your next invoice so it doesn't slip through the cracks.

GOOD HABITS

- ☐ One change per form keeps pricing clear.
- ☐ Number change orders in order: 1, 2, 3.
- ☐ Give the client a copy the same day.
- ☐ Keep the original contract total handy.

Tired of chasing unbilled change orders? The Change Order, Sub and AR Tracker logs every CO, prices it with your markup and flags the approved ones not billed yet. organizedopskits.com/change-order-template

Check your state's rules for written change orders. This form is a general template, not legal advice.